To whom it may concern:

Victoria Ross has been employed in our office for the past three years as a muscle therapist and reflexologist. As head of the physical therapy department she and the assistants she has trained have been most effective in meeting the diversified needs of the health program we offer here at the office. She has created new methods of massage which have had a fine restorative effect on many muscle and tissue problems.

I am happy to vouch for her fine character as one who is genuinely concerned with helping others and her conscientiousness and creativity as a therapist.

Sincerely,

George H. Hopkins P.C.
